

VEGAN SAILING

Have you been riding on the wave of veganism as lots of people do these days? People get more and more curious about it and they're finding out that vegan food is not as boring as it probably seems, and it has an answer regarding to some of the key issues of today's world – animal welfare, environmental concerns and personal health. If you are not much of a surfer and you rack your brains whether to go "full vegan" or not, we may have something for you. Imagine yourself sailing across Adriatic with a fully vegan crew, and a vegan skipper that cooks for you and trains yoga! Interest building up, eh? :) We think it's a perfect way for longstanding vegans to enjoy in their charter week, and for those yet undecided to gain some more info and experience during the week with everyone on "vegan train". We challenge you to find a better way to take care of yourself than this scenario: waking up in the middle of the Adriatic on our sailing boat, with a skipper that waits for you to yawn and come feast on food without meat and animal products, practically not leaving any of the regular carbon footprints, and then, full but not taken down by what you ate, get on one of the numerous small beaches and practice yoga till the sun grows stronger. A sprint to the crystal clear sea, swimming and then resting on the boat...and then again. Beat that! :)

If you are interested in this offer, do not hesitate to contact us right away to book you this fantastic journey and our vegan skipper with yoga training license.
