LUNA

ABOUT

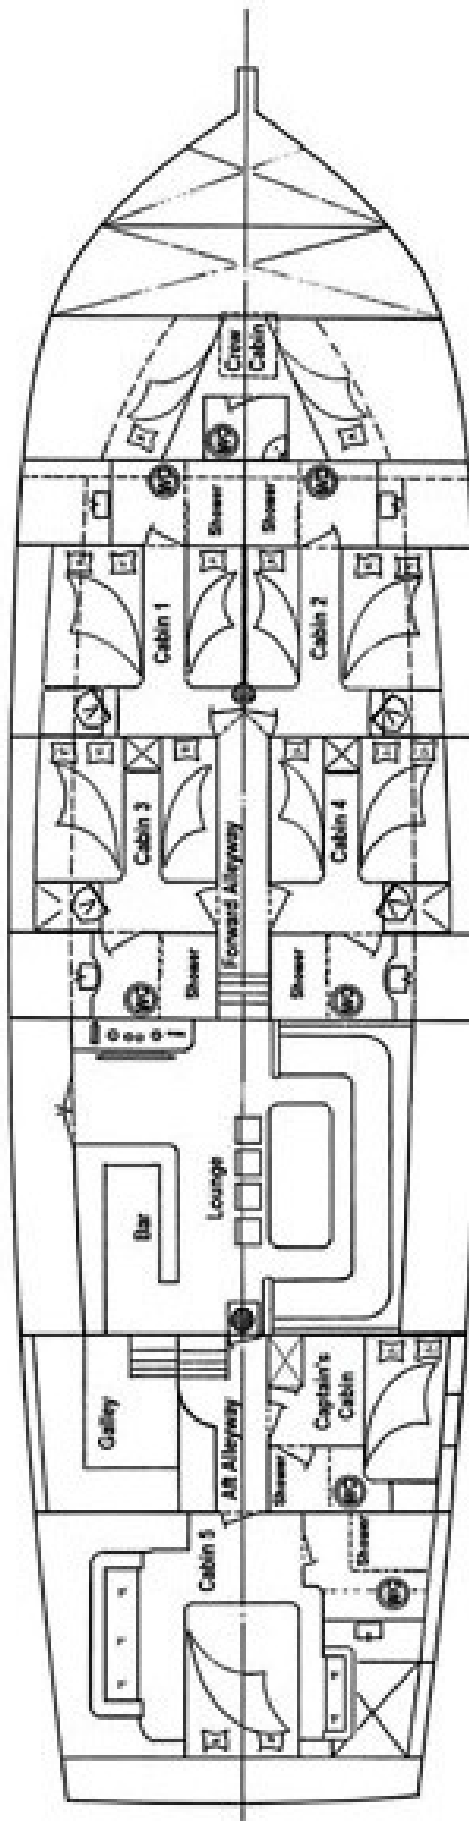

To ancient Romans, Luna was a minor goddess associated with the moon and its tidal forces. To present Croats and their guests, Luna is no minor in anything, but a goddess she is. The harmony of colors on her looks like a dress on a stunning body. The body consists of a long and wide main deck, and two upper decks. Every day you only need to choose what kind of goddess (or god) you want. Jacuzzi goddess, for the obvious reasons, has the prime position in this Pantheon, positioned on the front main deck with small table and chairs for minor deities in your company. If you are more into Bacchus' style, check the table at the back deck, full of Dalmatian delicacies and wine, or reach the sky itself from the top deck and become gods of sunchairs doing nothing while others serve you.

When you decide to mingle with the mortals, drop by to the bar in the salon to take some drinks and snacks. Below deck, 8 en-suite cabins worthy of gods, with AC await for you to practice your beauty sleep and prepare for another day of your rule on the Adriatic.
